

GREAT ANARCHIST PLOT TO KILL PRESIDENT.

EMMA GOLDMAN ARRAIGNED IN COURT; HER HEARING TO BE HELD NEXT WEEK.

She Passed a Sleepless Night in Prison and Faced the Judge Pale but Defiant—None of Her Friends Was in Court.

Chief of Detectives, Capt. Coleman, of Chicago, has received a message from Chief Bull, of Buffalo, stating that requisition papers for Miss Goldman will be forwarded as soon as possible.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Magistrate Prindiville to-day granted a continuance until Sept. 19 in the case of the anarchist Emma Goldman, who was arrested here yesterday. City Prosecutor Owens stated that the prisoner was charged with conspiracy to murder the President, and therefore he desired that she be held without bail.

Miss Goldman was not represented by counsel, but expressed her desire to have an immediate hearing. With a determined little snap of her teeth she said she was ready to proceed without counsel.

When the Court granted the continuance, she said she wanted to be allowed her freedom under bond. The Magistrate said that, as the latest bulletin indicated that the distinguished patient at Buffalo was on the high road to recovery, he would consider the matter of bail further and would announce his decision later.

Unseen in Court.

Miss Goldman appeared in court at 9:30 o'clock under the escort of Matron Keegan. She seemed surprised that no lawyer was there to take up her defense, and glanced uneasily about the room full of uncouth prisoners and curious spectators.

She asked for Lawyers Sattell and Browne. They were not in court and Justice Prindiville said he would wait a reasonable time for them to appear.

Although the telephone was kept busy, an hour elapsed and the lawyers were still absent.

Chief of Detectives Coleman then demanded that the hearing should proceed. It took only a few minutes, and then Miss Goldman was led back to her room in the women's annex. She looked pale and nervous. When Prosecutor Owens repeated the charge against her she flushed and then smiled.

"I asked the Chief of Police last night to have Lawyer Sattell sent to me," she said before leaving the court-room. "I guess he must have forgotten it. I expected that my friends would have been busy in my behalf, forgetting that most of them have been locked up in the nation-wide dragnet which the police have flung out."

Attorney Sattell appeared before Judge Chetlain just at noon to-day and asked permission to file a petition in habeas corpus proceedings in behalf of the Isaacs and other alleged anarchists, charged with having conspired with Czolgosz for the murder of President McKinley.

Sattell had failed to notify Chief O'Neill, Sheriff Magerstadt and Justice Prindiville against whom the writ was directed, and Judge Chetlain ordered him to do so before proceedings could be taken.

Habeas Corpus for Her.

Shortly after Miss Goldman left court, Lawyer Browne called on the prisoner and informed her that he will ask for a writ of habeas corpus in her behalf this afternoon. Justice Prindiville therefore consented to a further postponement of the ball matter until 5 P. M.

When the defendant was escorted back to the court-room Justice Prindiville said to her:

"Your lawyers do not seem to be inclined to come."

Miss Goldman—I learn that they are very busy with the other cases, so we will leave it. It doesn't matter; I can take charge of the case myself.

Prosecutor Owens—I renew my motion to continue the case until Sept. 19, and that she be held without bail.

Miss Goldman demanded a hearing and asked that she be admitted to bail.

Guilty as Czolgosz.

The Court (to Mr. Owens)—Why do you want a continuance?

Owens—The absence of material witnesses. I propose to show that Emma Goldman conspired together with the other nine defendants, to assassinate President McKinley, and will be just as GUILTY AS CZOLGOSZ. It is a capital offense and I do not think the offense is bailable under the circumstances of the case.

"Trumped-Up Charge."

The Court—Well, I will continue until the 19th. What have you to say about the ball part of it, Miss Goldman?

Miss Goldman—I want to be put under bail, as I asked, because I believe the case is a trumped-up charge and has no evidence whatsoever.

Owens—Your Honor, all the other defendants were committed without bail, and if there is any guilt Emma Goldman is the arch-conspirator. She is not entitled to any bail under the circumstances.

The Court—At the time the other cases were continued, of course, there was a great probability that the President would die, but there is great probability now that he is going to recover, according to the newspapers.

Owens—Yes, Your Honor, but you cannot not believe the papers sometimes. The Court—Well, I don't know. Owens—This might have been done for purposes best known to the physicians. I don't think that question ought to enter in this case anyhow.

The Court—I will continue the case until the 19th and consider the subject of bail. I will look up the matter a little further and definitely determine in regard to the bail.

Judge Chetlain decided to hold the Isaacs and other alleged anarchists without bail until Friday, when argument will be heard on the habeas corpus petition.

Her Miserable Night.

Emma Goldman spent an uncomfortable night in the woman's annex at the Harrison Street Police Station. In the evening her head began to ache violently from the strain under which she had been laboring all day. Being a trained nurse by profession, she insisted on treating herself and wrote a prescription which she handed to Chief Matron Keegan, with a request that it be filled.

The matron, however, declined to dispense without the sanction of the Chief of Police, fearing that the seemingly innocent slip of paper might call for poison. Consequently, the prisoner spent a sleepless night, during which she talked to the matron, again and again repeating her wonder that "so insignificant" a man as McKinley should receive such widespread attention.

She did not see a lawyer, saying she was willing to take it for granted that her friends in the city would see that she had proper legal assistance.

Rich Woman Drops Dead.

Chili's New Minister.

Don Juan Walker Martinez is Washington.

SANTIAGO, Sept. 11.—Don Juan Walker Martinez has been nominated Chile's Minister at Washington.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—One of the foremost lawyers at the bar of this State, Luther Lafin Mills, visited the jail to-day and had the following interview with Emma Goldman, the female Anarchist.

Q. Did you form the acquaintance of any conspicuous persons in your line of thought? A. Yes; those who were known as lecturers and writers. I knew them by reputation and saw them. I met Sebastian Faure and Prince Krapotkin. I met him in England and I met him in New York.

Q. Who are the leading persons in this city thinking in your line? A. It is a general mistake that there are any leaders in our movement. We do not recognize leaders, since we have no set organization at all.

Q. How do you term the object of your work? A. My object is to bring people to thinking that there are inequalities in the world which have been brought about by ignorance and by the force and power of government.

Q. And what do you aim to do as to those facts? A. To educate the people to the uselessness of government and the use of self-dependence. I am a Communist-Anarchist. I believe in the common production of things. I believe that not only among men, but in the animal kingdom, there are two important characteristics which have enabled us, as well as the stronger animals to survive, and that is mutual aid and mutual assistance.

Q. Do you believe in any form of organization? A. In co-operation, not in organization. There is some difference between these two.

Q. Then are you opposed to all forms of government? A. Positively, to all forms of government by man over man.

Q. Are you acquainted with any of the friends of the Anarchists who were hanged here? A. Not personally—no, I didn't know them. I am sorry to say.

Q. Did you subscribe to their doctrines? A. Well, I did, because their doctrines made me an Anarchist. I have advanced a good deal since because anarchy itself has advanced; the philosophy of anarchy has advanced. The difference, I suppose, between my philosophy and my conception of things and theirs is that they believe that men and conditions are responsible for everything that is, and I claim that men alone are responsible for everything that is.

Q. Have you advocated that necessity knows no law? A. Pardon me, I quoted Cardinal Manning. I said that intelligent people saw there were times in the country when necessity would know no law.

Q. Did you think that time had arrived in New York? A. At the time? No. But I thought if the Government didn't succeed in bettering the condition of the people the time would arrive.

Q. Did you think at that time that the occasion had arrived for doing away with the law? A. I do not think law can be done away with until the belief in law is done away with.

Q. What was your thought when you quoted the Cardinal's saying, "Necessity knows no law"? A. When people are hungry and desolate they are in a fit condition to do most any act, and if they commit an act, they must not hold a certain philosophical school responsible for it. It is not the school, but the conditions which are responsible for it.

Q. Then are you opposed to all forms of government? A. Positively, to all forms of government by man over man.

Q. Are you acquainted with any of the friends of the Anarchists who were hanged here? A. Not personally—no, I didn't know them. I am sorry to say.

Q. Did you subscribe to their doctrines? A. Well, I did, because their doctrines made me an Anarchist. I have advanced a good deal since because anarchy itself has advanced; the philosophy of anarchy has advanced. The difference, I suppose, between my philosophy and my conception of things and theirs is that they believe that men and conditions are responsible for everything that is, and I claim that men alone are responsible for everything that is.

Q. Have you advocated that necessity knows no law? A. Pardon me, I quoted Cardinal Manning. I said that intelligent people saw there were times in the country when necessity would know no law.

Six Centres of Anarchy in This Country Had Part in the Plot to Assassinate the President.

BUFFALO, Sept. 11.—"I agreed to do it."

In these words Leon Czolgosz confessed to police and Secret-Service agents that his attempt upon the life of President McKinley was the result of a conspiracy. He has revealed that one name, that of Emma Goldman, under arrest in Chicago, but he has told of the existence of papers which, if found, will lay bare the entire conspiracy.

These papers he intended to burn, and he wrapped them in a single package for that purpose. Time pressed, however, and in order to be early in the line of persons who greeted the President he threw them into a sewer. If their recovery is possible they will be found. Every inch of sewer in the city is being searched.

Czolgosz is not a talkative prisoner, but confinement wears on him, and he occasionally turns for relief to two policemen who sit in front of his cell. To them he has communicated the facts on which it is believed wholesale arrests and prosecutions will be based.

"Were you selected to do the shooting?" he was asked.

"Well, I agreed to do it," replied Czolgosz.

He made the statement simply and with no apparent intention to mislead. His other admissions have been made in the same way. On these admissions the police of the country have been set to work. Buffalo is filled with Secret Service officers, and every thread of the plot is being followed out.

Threw Away Incriminating Papers.

Czolgosz told, in his confession, of his attempt to destroy written evidences of the existence of a conspiracy. Before leaving his room in Nowak's hotel he gathered all of his papers together. He took every scrap of a letter from his pockets, his valise and the drawers of his table and bound them in one package, concealing that beneath his coat. He made a long, circuitous trip about the city, anxious to burn the papers, but was unable to do so. Finally he came to an open sewer. Where it was does not know or will not tell. Superintendent Bull asked him to lead detectives to the spot, but Czolgosz declared that he could not find the way.

DRASTIC LAWS FOR ANARCHISTS.

CHIEF JUSTICE DEPUE, OF NEW JERSEY, SPEAKS OUT.

Laws Should Be Passed, He Says, If There Are None to Fit Such Cases.

Chief Justice Depue, in charging the Essex County Grand Jury at Newark, after commenting on the failure of Police Justices and Justices of the Peace to take complaints for violations of the Sunday law, said:

"The attempted assassination of the President admonishes those who have the enforcement of the law in their hands of the necessity of rigidly enforcing the same. People hostile to the established Government have made themselves conspicuous in this State."

"If a group of men conspire to murder any one in another State or county and leave their State for that purpose and there is no law to punish them, then legislation of the most drastic kind should be passed at once."

She was arrested last night by Detectives Devaney and Farrell, of the West Thirtieth street station, on the complaint of Carbo, who alleged that she had robbed him of $200.

Carbo said he was stopping at the Grand Hotel. He failed to fully identify the woman, and she was discharged.

Magistrate Pool told Carbo he was more at fault than the woman and ordered a complaint charging him with dishonesty to be drawn, but finally allowed him to go.

Carbo says he was on a platform near President McKinley when the latter was shot on Friday at Buffalo, but did not see the shooting.

A moment later his shrieks brought his mother to his assistance. The boy's face and mouth were horribly burned.
